RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river was falling last evening with 6 feet 9 inches water in the canal. We were visited with a heavy rain last night.

For several days we have neglected to notice any news about the river owing to the election and the great excitement attending it. But there was but little worthy of note transpired. However we shall resume our daily notices.

A Launch.—Capt. Maguire's new steamer, for the Texas trade, was launched last evening, from Mr. Nadal's yard in beautiful style. Her machinery is ready and was built by Messrs. Hewitt & Symmes.

For New Orleans.—That nonpareil summer packet the Fanny Bullitt, leaves for New Orleans this evening, from Portland. The Fanny is in size of the second class, but far too large to go through the canal. Her accommodations are of the best order and her table is supplied with all the luxuries of the season. Capt. Dunham, an energetic, careful, and experienced officer is in command; and Mr. Silas Field, a young, courteous, accommodating, and handsome gentleman presides at the desk.

For Memphis.—The packet, the Tishomingo is off for Memphis this evening. Our business men are largely indebted to the T. for adding largely to their trade. Capt. Briscoe, Mr. Levi, and her other officers have established a wide popularity.

Sam Young is the name of a new sternwheel packet which arrived from Pittsburg yesterday. Her name (Sam) will ensure her success.

HAMS.—We have been hearing for some time past that Messrs. A. N. Macklin & Son, of Frankfort, were unsurpassed in their skill in the preparation of hams. We have received some specimens, and we are now prepared to confirm fully all that we have heard. We never saw more beautiful hams or tasted more delicious ones in our life.

Mr. T. L. Jefferson, on the corner of First and Market streets, is the sole agent for the sale of these fine hams in this city.

It has been reported that fifty German laborers including all the stone-masons have left the custom-house not to return again, &c. This is not so, as will be seen by the following card of Messrs. Fillion:

Messrs. M. & F. Fillion, contractors for the cut stone-work of the custom-house, certify that on Monday no one interfered with their hands and that they are now peacefully at work on the building. M. & F. FILLION.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 8, 1855.

FROM THE RIO GRANDE.—We have received the Brownsville Flag of July 14th and 15th. The latter paper has the following with regard to the progress of the Mexican revolution:

THE REVOLUTION.—The Revolution still gains strength on our frontier. Gen. Woll has fallen back from Reynoso upon Matamoras, and a considerable number of the rebels are now, at the time of our going to press, close upon his heels. We have it from good authority that several parties are encamped near Matamoras, one at Guadalupe, three leagues distant; one at the rancho of Agapito Longoria, about eight leagues off, and the third party at some other point close by. These parties are, we learn, commanded by Capistrano, Trierina, and Sayas. They do not contemplate an attack on the city, as yet, we believe. A rumor, said to be well authenticated, says that Gen. Vidauri, having regulated matters at Monterrey, was again marching on Matamoras with a force of twenty-eight hundred men.

It is also said that the forces now around the doomed city have orders not to engage the enemy until the arrival of Vidauri's reinforcements. In the mean time Gen. Woll, and those subalterns to him, have grown wrathful to desperation. During the absence of Gen. Woll, the command of the city is said to have devolved upon the famous Dona Lucinda, his reputed wife, and her first use of authority was to command the human treatment of one of her own sex, which not even the tears of the ladies of Matamoras could prevent.

It is impossible to say when Matamoras will fall, but its fate is inevitable, and then terrible will be the reckoning. We have much to say on this subject, but our limited space will not permit.

The flag of the 14th learns that there is no fear of the ultimate success of the insurgents, as the people from all quarters are flocking to their standard, en masse, filled with the greatest enthusiasm. Their numbers are said to have already swelled to three thousand of the best men of the frontier. Many of the most wealthy and influential men in Northern Mexico, inspired by that love of liberty which actuated our fathers of '76, are said to have abandoned their homes, contributed their means, and have joined the ranks as private soldiers.

Settled.—We learn that the Central Railroad Company have settled with J. Lieb and Mr. Esser, who were injured by the railroad accident between this city and Geddes a few months since. The Company pay these gentlemen $8,000 each. There were several others injured at the same time, but we have not learned what disposition has been made of their claims for damages.—Syracuse Standard.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT.—Falling of the Stone Cornice of the New Trust Company Bank Building—Seven Men Killed.—Yesterday afternoon, about half-past two o'clock, the greater part of the heavy stone cornice of the Trust Company's new bank building, on the corner of Main and Third streets, fell, killing seven men who happened to be on the pavement below.

The following are the names of the persons killed: Hudson B. Curtis, superintendent of the building; Robert Cameron, contractor; John T. Chambers, Balser Waldon, Michael Donnell, James Gilian, and John Teinman.

The bodies were dug out from the ruins as speedily as possible, and laid on the pavement in front of the bank buildings, awaiting the arrival of the coroner. While the mangled bodies remained there a number of females, who had relatives at work at the building, made their way through the crowd, and arriving at the dead bodies, lifted, with an expression of intense agony, the papers that had been hastily thrown over them, from the face of first one and then another.

At that very spot, covered hastily with newspapers, in the same manner, lay but a short time since the bodies of those who were killed by the giving way of the pavement from the weight of an iron safe.

Cooker Menzies, immediately on his arrival, had the dead removed to Chase's building, and from there they were delivered to their friends. They were so horribly mangled that it is impossible to describe fully their injuries.

Messrs. Cameron, Curtis, and Waldon were sitting on a stone, or piece of timber, on the side-walk, and engaged in conversation, at the time of the accident. The other three happened accidentally to be passing.—Cin. Gaz., Aug. 8.

MANUMISSION OF SLAVES.—Yesterday morning Mr. W. H. Harris, of Mississippi, appeared before Judge Parker, of the common pleas court, on behalf of Nathaniel Hoggatt, of Adams county, Miss., and released from bondage the following slaves: Nelly, a bright mulatto, twenty-one years old; her male child, William, two years old, seven-eighths white; her female child, Octavia, four months old, seven-eighths white; Mary, a mulatto, seventeen years old; Anthony Hoggatt, aged twenty-four years; Absalom Hoggatt, aged twenty-one years; William Hoggatt, aged twenty-six years; James Hoggatt, aged twenty-two years; Emily Hoggatt, aged sixteen years; all these slaves are light mulattoes, with fair education, fine-looking, and intelligent.

The men are all excellent mechanics, and look better fed and better dressed than two-thirds of the white population of the North. They were the property of Mr. Wilfred Hoggatt, deceased, of Mississippi, who at his death gave them their freedom in his will, but by some informality in the drawing up of his will, his request could not be carried out, and his son, Mr. Nathaniel Hoggatt, becoming heir to the estate, brought the slaves to this city for the purpose of complying with the dying wishes of his father. It is the intention of Mr. Harris to carry the whole party back to Mississippi, where they all have excellent situations.

Further Particulars of Walker's Battles.—The Battle of Rivas.—Taking in consideration the handful of Americans (sixty after the natives broke and fled) engaged in this bloody combat, it seems to have been one of the most unequal, if not the most unequal, on record.

There could not have been less than 700 of the Nicaraguans, to judge from the accounts, written and verbal, which we have received. Col. Walker reports his loss at five killed and six wounded, besides the two whom Gen. Bosca reports having shot on the road from Rivas to San Juan. Capt. McNabb, who commanded one of the companies, says not less than twelve of the little command were killed. Among these are Frank Anderson, Achilles Kewen, Benj. T. Williamson, Thomas Crocker, George Leonard, the two brothers Cole, E. Eastbrook, and Charles Brogan. The names of those wounded we have not learned. The remainder of the army sailed for Realejo in the harbor San Jose. The great blunder was ever leaving the northern part of the republic without a force sufficient to hold ground against a population of not less than 60,000 persons, who compose the natives of the Department Meridional. Mr. Kewen was second in command. His dashing gallantry and almost insane courage made him a conspicuous mark to the few sharpshooters among the foreign attaches of the enemy.

(From the Alta California.)

Judge Chambers's Affidavit.—In another column will be found the most singular affidavit ever made by a sane man. Of the subject matter of it we have nothing to say, but shall wait for the additional evidence. But that Judge Chambers, recently a banker and partner of the great house of Page, Bacon, & Co., should confess that for five years he has been such a gump as to buy gold dust for more than it was worth, and allow a rival house to get the better of his to the amount of $400,000, passes belief. If these charges are true, then, indeed, it was time for Page, Bacon, & Co. to fail; for if they would allow themselves to be cheated right straight along for five years, and could not find out how it was done till after they had failed, then they were not worthy of the confidence that was placed in them by this community. This affidavit is, assuming it to be true, the most remarkable confession of stupidity and weakness ever made, and it looks amazingly as though some malice was instigating the proceedings.

Affairs of Adams & Co.—The Supreme Court of California has rendered a decision in the case of Adams & Co., vacating the assignment, on the ground that banking firms are not entitled to the benefit of the insolvent laws of the State. The Alta California views the decision as a bad thing for the general creditors, deeming the chance bad for their obtaining anything, as the assets will be absorbed by law expenses and judgments already obtained. It gives the following list of those which have been confirmed in the fourth district court alone:

John H. Dall, judgment for.....$42,000 66
Merrick, F. Field.....75,987 50
Albert E. Field.....11,121 25
Joseph C. Palmer.....12,390 00
A. A. Selover.....37,393 00

Total.....$168,851 42

Old Pulaski has rung her bell, and we may now look out for the engine! On Monday last, the County Court, Judge Campbell presiding, assisted by nearly a full bench of Associate Justices, unanimously ordered the subscription by the county of $100,000 stock in the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad, for which the bonds of the county will be issued.

THE ELECTION.—The Americans have certainly elected six Congressmen. Mr. Morehead's majority will be at least 10,000. Both houses of the Legislature will be largely American.

[From this morning's Journal.]

READING, Pa., Aug. 8.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting composed of men of every political party opposed to the aggressions of slavery held here today. It was resolved to hold a State Republican convention at Pittsburg on the 29th.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 8.

The State convention of the Know Nothings has voted down the proposition to admit naturalized protestant foreigners into the organization.

The meeting at Reading, Pa., voted to call a convention at Pittsburg on Sept. 5th, instead of August 29th.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8.

Advices from Kansas mention that great excitement has been created concerning the new Governor. The Legislature distrusts his soundness on the slavery question and petition the President to appoint the acting Secretary, Woodson if Dawson declines.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 8.

A special court was held yesterday at West Bend for the trial of Debtor the murderer of the Meyer family. A verdict of murder in the first degree was rendered by the jury. While he was being conveyed back to the jail, guarded by the military, the mob made a rush on him. The military gave way and Debtor was felled to the ground by a stone. The mob then fell upon him, beating and mangling him horribly. They then tied him with a rope and dragged him through the streets and hung him head downwards to a tree.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 10.

The latest accounts from Portsmouth represent the yellow fever as increasing notwithstanding half the population has fled. Sixty-six deaths had occurred up to Tuesday. One family of twelve persons has been completely swept away by the pestilence.

The disease is said to be on the increase at Norfolk.

NORTH CAROLINA ELECTION.

RALEIGH, Aug. 8.

Clingman has been elected by an immense majority. Branch, Winslow, Craige, and Rufus, Democrats, are also elected. Paine and Read, Americans have been elected. In the 6th district the contest is close and the result uncertain.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.

During the terrific thunder storm of Saturday evening the lightning struck the house of Mr. Smiley, in Rochester, Massachusetts, instantly killing Mrs. Smiley.

The Neptune House, Chelsea, was also damaged by lightning, as was also the house of Thos. Jackson.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 6.

The room of Robert Halsey, Esq., of Ithaca, at Congress Hall, in this place, was entered yesterday morning and nine Williamsport and Elmira Railroads Bonds, one thousand dollars each, numbered between fifty and seventy, and five thousand dollars' worth of diamond jewelry, besides five hundred dollars in cash and other property, taken. Three burglars have been arrested, all found with tools for opening doors, but none of the property has been recovered. The burglars gave their names as Abram M. Gen. Bosca reports having shot on the road from Rivas to San Juan. Capt. McNabb, who commanded one of the companies, says not less than twelve of the little command were killed. Among these are Frank Anderson, Achilles Kewen, Benj. T. Williamson, Thomas Crocker, George Leonard, the two brothers Cole, E. Eastbrook, and Charles Brogan. # EVENING BULLETIN.

THURSDAY EVENING, AUG. 9, 1855.

THE CITIES—THEIR PHILOSOPHY, MORAL AND PHYSICAL.—The accretion of wealth which commerce and manufactures create are to be seen in the growth of cities, the adornments of the surrounding country, and the extension of all the physical aids that Christian civilization require. Of these aids the railway, the telegraph, the college, the factory, the ship, and the steamboat are prominent agencies in the career of wealth-accumulation, and fit representatives of the genius of skillful industry and educated enterprise. But towering above them all as a material agent—a thing of power, strong, efficient, vital power—stands the CITY. Who can look down upon a great city at midday, with its thronged streets, its bustling quays, its busy workshops, and its fire-spouting furnaces, without feeling that he is viewing one of the mightiest instruments that man ever devised for extending his power and accumulating wealth. Even in the calm tranquillity of night, when all creation is hushed to repose, the beholder of a great city, as he contemplates its vast aggregation of edifices from the lowly tenement of the poor man to the spacious palace of the merchant-prince, feels profoundly impressed with the conviction that he is in the presence of dormant energy and slumbering power that only requires to be aroused to put forth efforts of the most resistless activity.

Whether in every age the city has been the type of the times, it is difficult to determine, but such seems to be emphatically the fact in these later days. Pekin, Constantinople, St. Petersburg, Paris, Vienna, London, and New York are severally the representatives of the degrees of progress and civilization that prevail in the respective countries of which they are the chief emporiums of wealth and commerce. The dormant energies of the overgrown cities of China are in keeping with the feebleness, inactivity, and inability to repress domestic insurrection that are now being so strikingly manifested by the nation at large. Constantinople fitly represents the declining condition of Turkey, while London and Paris are types of the national idiosyncrasies of the countries of which they are respectively the capitals.

Individuals, cities, and nations all have their limited periods of existence; they each rise, flourish, decay, and finally expire. Memphis, Thebes, and Nineveh, vast cities, once the pride of the nations whose greatness they served to illustrate, have passed away, leaving no trace but ruins. Rome is in rapid progress of decay; London and Paris have probably reached their culminating points; but St. Petersburg and New York are only yet in the full bloom of early youth. Young and full of vigor, drawing their sustenance each from a vast nation, the resources of which are hardly begun to be developed, these two cities will, as their respective countries improve, continue to grow in population, wealth, and power with a rapidity and to an extent of which there is in history no precedent. These great cities will, in their turn, rise, culminate, and decay, and some future Layard may exhume from their ruins specimens of art, that will serve as sad mementos of extinct power and departed splendor. The growth and maturity of great cities are a work of time; they rise slowly to eminence and decline by almost imperceptible degrees. In olden times, cities were not unfrequently destroyed by force, ravaged by fire and sword, and the inhabitants, made captives, were doomed to a life of servitude; but in these modern times civilization has mitigated ferocity, and men and cities are left to decay and die a natural death.

The mightiest cities of the world have grown gradually from humble beginnings into vast proportions, dazzling splendor, incredible wealth, and wonderful power. The small village which Romulus founded about seven hundred and fifty years before the Christian era, became, even before that era, the mistress of the world. Some nineteen centuries ago, the Britons established a camp upon the bank of the river Thames; that camp has grown to be the commercial emporium of the world and the metropolis of the proudst Empire upon earth. The miserable hamlet founded by some fishermen in the time of Julius Caesar, on a small island in the Seine, now dictates the laws of fashion to the Christian world, and is the seat of the most enlightened and refined civilization known to man. Two hundred and forty-six years ago Hendrick Hudson, a Dutch navigator, pitched his tent on Manhattan island. On that spot New York now rears her lofty towers and cloud-piercing spires; there stands the commercial mart of the greatest Republic that ever swept along the tide of time; a city, that, though young in years, is strong in all the elements of wealth and power; a city from whence are sent forth multitudes of ships whose sails whiten every sea, and whose flag floats in every port upon the globe. One hundred and fifty-two years ago, Peter the Great founded the town of Petersburg at the mouth of the Neva. This city of royal birth is a fit representative of regal power. With few natural advantages to aid its growth, it has been built up into a city of magnificent proportions with corresponding power, and is destined to become the great center of eastern civilization. There resides a power that all the world, Pagan and Christian, both respect and fear.

But if great cities are vast depositories of wealth, and agencies of power, they are also most active and efficient laboratories of corruption and vice. There all human vices have their rendezvous and hold their revel. Sin finds in cities a moral atmosphere congenial to its growth, a place where, like pestilence, it spreads by contact—a place where profligacy is propagated and infamy matured. All sorts of people resort to great cities with purposes as various as are the characters and pursuits of the persons themselves. Some go there for employment, some for pleasure, some for political promotion, and others for personal display; some for the improvement of their fortunes, and others for the benefit of their health; some to practice their profession, others to acquire one; some come to study, others to instruct; some for pious and benevolent purposes, others to perpetrate crimes; some come to beg, and others to steal. In this way, amidst the occupations of honest pursuits, the giddy whirl of fashionable society, the debauching influence of vicious associations, and the habitual familiarity with wickedness and vice, in all their various grades and phases, goodness is soon forgotten, duty is disregarded, and public virtue decays. The notorious profligacy of cities has been popularized by the saying that

"God made the country, and man made the town."

PROLIFIC.—Mr. E. W. Rupert has left at our office branch of tree containing thirty full grown peaches, twenty-five of which are in a cluster, occupying but twelve inches in length of the branch. Nature is making her best efforts in every department this season. These peaches were grown in Mr. R.'s garden, corner of Fifth and Broadway.

A Matamoras correspondent of the N. Y. Herald relates the following:

A most cruel act was perpetrated in Matamoras the other day, on the person of a respectable female, for the alleged crime of having carried a letter to one of Woll's officers from one of the revolutionary party. She was unaware of its contents; and the helpless woman, after being confined in the common jail, was taken out into the public square and her hair shorn by one of the ruffians in the chain-gang. She was then mounted on a mule and sent to the mouth of the river, thence to go to Vera Cruz. The unhappy creature had suffered more than a woman's feelings could bear, and on the very day she left some 15 miles from the city. This horrible deed was committed by order of General Castro, who had been left in command at Matamoras.

MT. VERNON, Aug. 3, 1855.
I see in the last issue of your paper a great misrepresentation of the facts in regard to Mr. Clay and John G. Fee, with whom I am well acquainted. Your paper, and I hope you will examine the fact and correct the error.

Some time during last winter John G. Fee (who is an Abolition preacher) hired, as he says, by the New York Abolition Society at a salary of $300 per annum, went to a place in Illinois called Dripping Springs, and preached there two or three months. He opened his abolition doctrines that the people became exasperated about it and finding also that he was distributing in the neighborhood some of his outrageous Abolition pamphlets, some of which were found in the hands of the citizens, he determined to stop him, and sent him to the jail of the town. The citizens of Illinois held a meeting and sent a committee to wait on Mr. Clay and Fee, after which they declined to go to the Dripping Springs, and appointed a meeting at Sanginissin, in Illinois, for the 29th of June, when Mr. Clay made a speech in that town at the Brush Creek Meeting-house, and at Saenger's hotel, with a large audience, in which you have copied in this paper, and I refer you to the letter of the committee from this place to Messrs. Clay and Fee.

The people of this county have no objections to emancipation, "speaking their opinions publicly," and they abhor mob law, and are as men couldabor it, and they would vindicate the rights of any as described by Mr. Clay, and while they would do that they would also vindicate what they conceive to be their own rights.

Mr. Clay did not, as you say, address a "large and attentive audience." The audience was sure very large, enough, but most of them were children, and were armed to the teeth; and a number of them acted most disorderly. Soon after leaving the place of speaking, as I am informed, they passed by the residence of Mr. John Haly, who was one of the largest slaveholders in the county, and who was then his master, and is now dead, and after passing this house, he refused to do, when the citizens took hold of him, put him in his horse, and sent him away.

At the spring term of the Circuit Court, Mr. Clay and Fee were called for arraignment (as they were) of grievances, but the court being fully advised of the facts, and considering there was no redress due them. Thus the matter ended until the 29th of June, when Mr. Clay made a speech in that town at the Brush Creek Meeting-house, and at Saenger's hotel, with a large audience, in which you have copied in this paper, and I refer you to the letter of the committee from this place to Messrs. Clay and Fee.

If these are the kind of men who are to be lauded for the "fearless vindication of the freedom of speech," I am sorry for the country.

Yours, most truly, W. H. KIRKLY.

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

Having learned that it was currently reported that those persons who had received injuries on Monday last and imprisoned had been denied either medical or surgical attention by W. K. Thomas, I deem it my duty to state, that, on Monday evening, at the request of Mr. Thomas, I visited the jail and dressed the wounds of every single individual who had received an injury up to that time. After night, at the request of the same gentleman, I returned and remained until near midnight, rendering such assistance as was necessary, and until every man who had received an injury had been attended to. It is true that such attention was not rendered as might have been received at a hospital, but all that could be done at the place and under the circumstances to render them comfortable was done.

I would further state that one man, who had received a gun shot wound in the lungs and other serious injuries, died during the night of Monday, and that those who were seriously wounded were sent to the hospital on Tuesday morning by order of Judge Johnston.

R. H. ALLEN.

To the Editors of the Louisville Bulletin:

PADUCAH, Aug. 7, 1855.
GENTLEMEN: All the precincts in the county have been heard from. The American ticket has 257 majority in this (McCracken) county. Corbett, Anti-American, is elected to the Legislature by 25 or 30 votes. Clark's majority in this district will be about 2,500. Lyon gives 40 majority for Clark. Marshall and Graves give large majorities against the Know Nothings. The Know Nothings get Livingston by 300. King is elected Senator from this district by 500 majority.

COL. KINNEY ALL RIGHT—SQUATTED AND BUILDING.—We transfer to our columns this morning, the latest official bulletin from the Kinney expedition. It had safely arrived at Greystown, with an aggregate force, including the commander-in-chief, of twenty men, and the Colonel, like a bona fide squatter, had set to work in building himself a house. Thus, at all events, Greystown, with the accession of Col. Kinney and company, is pretty secure against another bombardment from this administration.

It will also be perceived that Col. Fabens and Capt. Swift left yesterday in the steamer Daniel Webster for the same destination; and we are further informed that the brig Ocean Bear, which sailed hence yesterday, goes out with quite a company of colonists in the same enterprise.

In the mean time Col. Walker, on the Pacific side, having been betrayed by the revolutionary party, had joined the government forces, and he may probably, by this diversion, put the latter fairly upon their legs again, and himself in a good position for the most useful services to Col. Kinney in his project of Yankee colonization.

Will the Nicaragua Accessory Transit Company give Kinney, Walker, and Fabens a chance? New country—full of raw materials—fine field for American enterprise. Why should it longer run to waste?—N. Y. Herald.

LATEST NEWS.

Several skiffs filled with armed men went over to Corn Island about noon, it being understood that some of the rioters were on the island. We do not know what success they met with.

An Irishman was knocked down and beaten on Water street, below Fifth, about noon.

Officer Ed. Williams arrested Joseph Grimm, a German, this morning, who is charged with shooting Adkins's hack-driver on Monday. Grimm denies it.

We are under obligations to Adams & Co.'s Express, and to the Cincinnati, Hamilton, & Dayton Railroad for New York Papers of Tuesday, and Pittsburg and Sandusky papers of Yesterday.

The Coroner, Dr. W. Lee White, informs us that the report that the remains of human bodies had been found among the ruins of Quinn's houses is without any foundation. Up to last night, all the burnt bones found in the ruins would not fill the hollow of a man's hand, and it is as likely they were the bones of a dog or some other animal as those of a human being.

Several interesting cases are given in the city court proceedings, among them two connected with the riots on Monday. The Judge remarked that he should give all matters connected with the riots and brought before him the most thorough investigation. A fellow who calls himself Watson, but has several aliases, and has been an inmate of the penitentiary, was committed for further trial on a charge of felony.

Read the following opinions of the press:

"As a story writer this lady has no superior. She ranks as the first female author of America, and deservedly so. Her works have attained the highest reputation, not only works of fiction, but for their beauty and fascination which the stories have. Every one of her books is a work of art, and the characters and incidents are life-like and vivid, and always charm and delight the reader. We predict for the 'Missing Bride' not only a flattering reception, but a very extensive sale."
